MR. BRIGHT AS AN ANGLER-EMPEROR WILL IAM'S VISIT TO ENGLAND-THE KING OF HOLLAND-DURE OF BUCKINGHAM AND CHANDOS-SOCIAL NOTES.

[BY CABLE TO THE TRIBUNE, I Copyright: 1889: By The New-York Tribune, and an April 1.—Among the many proofs which Bright gave of his belief in the Unionist cause, and ifices he made for it, perhaps the most tio was that during the passing of the he hardly ever left the House of Commons. to be on the spot were his vote necessary after night he spent at the House, in the brary or the smoking room. But he never took his at in the House, because he said he could not standing cheered by the Tories for voting with them. n he had given up going into general society, and out quietly with people whom he knew, and m he could smoke in the evening and have of tea, of which he took great quantities. Occasionally the old fire within him of break out again with all its early strongth. In he same few impassioned sentences he would pour with a food of eloquence which reminded those who ard him of the days when his speeches stirred and onsed the House of Commens and the country as no alse's ever did.

Season after season, when the Basses were the sporting tenants of the Tulchan ings and fishings, Mr. Bright was an assiduous that fisherman in the upper Spey. CONDITION OF THE KING OF HOLLAND.

The truth about the King of the Netherlands has ome out. Why such a mystery has been made of it inconceivable. He has been quite out of his mind for mouths, with occasional glimpses of sanity. The doctors informed the Government long ago that there was no chance of his rallying and that ultimately would become quite mad-under which circum-nees his health might improve and his life be proged, which now is said to be not unlikely. The on long shrank from assuming the Regency, which she knew would announce to the world her husband's condition. But the position has at last been forced on her. Latterly the King, who at first could not out of his sight, conceived a most dislike to her, which made it impossible for her to

THE DEAD DUKE OF BUCKINGHAM. The last Duke of Buckingham and Chandos will be remembered as one of the best men of business who ever sat in the House of Lords. His grasp of detail was extraordinary, and on matters of procedure and other technical questions he could speak with the same authority and precision as, in other days, on the most abstrusive points connected with the management of iden and Northwestern Railway. Although be naturally a man of homely tastes and unaristo appearance, he was proud of his lineage and The spleador of his silver howdah and livposition. The spicial of the seried retinus is not yet forgotten either at Madras or Delhi, where his magnificence quite outshown the Governor-General's, and contrasted curiously with the simplicity of the losen agriculturist, who administered estates in a natriarchal manner peculiarly his own In the country he was the confidant of his tenants and pendents, giving them an abundance of paternal od advice with that peculiar brusqueness which concealed his real kindness of heart. It is creating some interest among Mrs. Howard's and contempt for all the privileges of hereditary and contempt for all the privileges of hereditary She had completely converted her hus and to all her extreme views until the Home Rule on appeared, when he refused, in spite of all reats and entreatles, to accept the shibboleth of the nian party. A PARLIAMENTARY DINNER. Mr. Speaker's dinner to the unreconcilables and the sadid critics on Wednesday evening, for which his test devised one more startling change of menu, and as early levee which followed, formed a rallying it from which politicians of all classes distributed asselves among the various entertainers who comted for their patronage. A GAT SCENE AT WINDORNE HOUSE.

The Mi-careine dance at Wimborne House on Thursday was the most brilliant and at the same time the most successful of society's Leaten entertainments. Nothing could have been more effective than the shading of the electric lights, in waite and gold, in the ballroom. The drawing-coom and conservatory were degerated with masses of daffodis and red and white camelias. The floor got into fairly good condition before the end of the evening, and there was more than a sufficiency of dateing men. The hostess were a dress of gray and silver, embossed with velvet. JOHN L' STODDARD'S 'LECTURE AT DALY'S

At Daly's Theatre yesterday morning at 11 o'clock, before a charming audience of ladies which filled every seat of the house, John L. Stoudard gave the second lecture of his Course A in his Lenten series of illustrated lectures on European travel. He was followed throughout with pleased attention and with frequent marks of approval. A vivid account was given of the discomforts of crossing the Channel, and of the experiences of travellers who found themselves unable to resist the disturbing influences of that uneasy body of water. After some interesting de-scriptions of life at Ostend and of the system of bathing at that well-known watering place, Mr. Stoddar I passed to pictures que old Ghent. He spoke of the days of its former splendor, of the homage which was paid to the Counts of Flanders in its way, its marvellous old tower and its attractive streets. He said that Ghent is even now a flourishing and prosperous city, and the seat of important manufactures. A great contrast to its bustling ctivity is afforded by Bruges, which in mediaeval times was, like Ghent, a powerful, rich and restless city; but in this century the currents of trade and raffic have passed it by, and one-third of its population are now paupers. Its canals are neglected, and in every part it shows dilapidation and decay The superb belfry, however, of its magnificent town hall still towers above quaint buildings and the quiet streets. Mr. Stoddard repeated in an effective way the well-known lines of Longfellow on the belfry of

He considered its people among the happiest anywhere in the world. With their liberal approximent, with their activity and energy, with their readiness to take advantage of every opportunity to advance their interests in a legitimate way, with the attractive features of the country, levely parks and handsome buildings, Mr. Stoddard considered Belgium fortunate indeed among the nations of the earth. A vivacious and attractive description was given of Brussels with excellent pictures of all the points and buildings of interest. The splendid new Palace of Justice was shown in all its imposing proportions, and Mr. Stoddard expressed the opinion that it is the finest piece of modern architecture adapted to secular uses in existence.

Brussels is rich in monuments and statues as it is also in gardens and parks; and these were described in entertaining style. Memories of the martyred heroes, Counts Egmont and Horne, were recalled and the andience was touched by the pathos of their fate. sing on to busy Antwrp Mr. Stoddard showed its elegant Stock Exchange, the tide of commerce in its thrifty streets and its superb cathedral spire. When he reached Holland he made some pleasant references to the extreme flatness of the country and enthusiastically commended the doughty Dutch for their ceaseless vigils, their unbounded resolution and their tremendous toils in preserving their country from the sea. Characteristics of life and manners in Rotterdam, Amsterdam and The Hague were prosented with a light and easy touch. After showing what peasant life by land and boat life on the canals are like in Holland, and glancing at the salient are like in Holland, and glancing at the salient features of the existence of the lower and middle classes among the Dutch, Mr. Stordard passed to the costly and elegant buildings, the signs of refinement, wealth and luxury in Holland's fine capital. The Hague. Pictures of its famous watering place Scheveningen and of Dutch fishermen concluded a lecture of remarkable interest.

The same lecture will be repeated this morning in Course B. The next, like the third lecture in Course A, will be delivered on Thursday of this week at 11 o'cleck, and the subject will be Cardinal Richelieu.

INCREASING ATTRACTIONS AT THE CIRCUS

weather of last evening seemed to have no pressing effect upon Barnum and Bailey's shows, and the second week of the circus opened with a most encouraging patronage. There were fully 6,000 people in the garden. A most clever novelty was the act of the Puritan Brothers, Shad and Shed, one of the first numbers of the new programme. The fat Shad and the slender Shed induige, in their contribution to the performance, in a wrestling-match strictly in accordance with the sporting rules in vogue among the Puritans. Nine "brand-new" clown acts were invented and rehearsed last week, and are given now. Other noveliles are the trained Texas steers and the white mule and spotted stallion. The trained dogs have added a number of new tricks their repertory. The fact about the whole circus, that R. F. Hamilton, the genial press agent, instead of having to search for something advertise, has a hard time selecting from the enermous list of attractions offered.

"ERMINIE" APPEARS AT NIBLO'S.

That " Erminie" has not lost any of its extraordinary drawing-power was proved last night at Nible's, where, despite the particularly incloment weather, a crowded audience assembled and applauded the familiar numbers. The principal parts were sung by Isabella Urquhart, Anna O'Keefe, Katie Gilbert, J. H. Ryley and Mark Smith. An excellent performance was given, and the opera was dressed and mounted with the same tasts and richness as when presented at the Casino. The repetitions during the week will be the only opportunities of hearing "Erminie" in New-York this season.

MONTHLY MEETING OF SOROSIS. The monthly social meeting of Sorosis was held at Delmonico's yesterday. Notwithstanding the storm the members turned out in full force, and the newly elected officers were in their places, and the machinery ran smoothly and pleasantly. The programme opened with a song by Clementine Lazar Studwell, and in answer to applause she gave "My Bonnie Rose." Miss Laura Sedgwick recited "An Essay on Woman," and then the Committee on Literature filled out the remainder of the programme.

The adjourned game on Saturday between Max Judd and Tchigorin, in which the former claimed a draw under the sifty-move rule, was decided by the committee last night against the Russian player, who thereupon, it is said, threatened to resign from tournament. He alone of the competitors has had any dispute with his opponents; and as Mr. Del-mar would have also perhaps beaten him, his chances of winning the first prize were certainly inferior to Mason, however, had a winning position, so that it will be hard on him if Tchigorin retires, as Mason will not in that case score a hard earned victory.

BLACKBURNE SUCCUMBS TO WEISS AND MASON THE CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE STARS UP THE WAVE'S PRIDE. Naval officers have been jealous, recently, becaus of a belief that the centennial celebration committee was slighting the Navy in favor of the Army. They deemed it significant that General Schofield had been invited to command the troops on shore, while no invitation had been extended to Admiral Porter to assume control of the naval section of the celebration. The sentiments of the discontanted officers were voiced in a letter from Rear-Admiral D. L. Braine to Secretary Bowen, of the general committee, protesting that Admiral Porter should receive a courtesy similar to that extended to General Schofield. This letter was referred to Asa Bird Gardner, chairman of the naval committee, who, yesterday, replied to Mr. Bowen as

The Civic Committee on Navy are intrusted with the duty of receiving the President and suite at Elizabeth port and bringing him to New-York City. When the Navy Department designates the ships-of-war to participate it will be known who will be the commanding officer of the raval contingent. You may rest assured that this committee will show to the Admiral every courtesy called for by his rank. They also wish to see that in the distribution of invitations to the several celebrations, the Navy may not be overlooked. The committee, therefore, should have an opportunity to designate the recipients of invitations from this branch of the service so that those entitled may not be passed over."

The General Committee is confronted with another dilemma. When the Governors of the various States and Territories were invited to send commissioners to the celebration to be entertained at the committee's expense, and to be present at the dinner, the committee forgot to set a limit upon the number of commissioners each Governor should send. There have been sent in already from several States the names of the commissioners appointed. Every Governor seems to have appointed from six to a dozen commissioners, while West Virginia has no less than twenty-seven. The question new is what is to be done with all these commissioners. Only 800 persons can be accommodated at the dinner, and to give all the commissioners places would involve the necessity of excluding some members of the State Legislature, perhaps, with the tempest in the consequent danger of raising another Capitol at Albany. It is likely that the commissioners from each State will be asked to select some one from among themselves to represent their State at the

On Monday, April 29, it is proposed to hold exercises of an appropriate character in all the schools. Wednesday, May 1, is a legal holiday and it has been suggested by some of the members of the board that the schools should be also closed on Wednesday, and a number of school children take part in the Industrial Parade on that day. No soones had the difficulty with naval No sooner had the difficulty with naval office been smoothed over, than another batch of troub has come in the ranks of the Grand Army. Deparent Commander Harrison Clarks issued an ord to all of the 638 post commanders in the State, is cauly, directing that each should appoint two me from his post to take part had the centennial paradro meet the expense the Legislature appropriat $20,000 for the transportation and subsistence these delegates. When the local Grand Army melarmed that Colonel Cusier, chairman of the arm committee on the celebration, had assigned the Grand Lorent Legislature to the rear learned that Colonel Cauger, chairman of the army committee on the celebration, had assigned the Grand Army and Loyal Legion detachment to the rear of the procession, many of them regarded it as a slight upon the veterans. They considered that the Grand Army men should precede the militia. Then, it seems that to Grand Commander Waroer was to be given a reception by all the Department representatives at Sulier's Park, in Harlem, on the night of April 30, and the dissatisfied veterans feared that if they were compelled to bring up the rear of the parade, they would not get through in time to hold the reception.

April 30, and the casacteristic properties of the parade, they would not get through in time to hold the reception.

A call was issued by some of the dissatisfied post commanders, for a meeting held last week. At this meeting a committee was appointed to wait upon Colonel Cruger and request that the order of march be changed. The committee claimed fo represent ever half of the posts in New-York and Kings Counties, and demanded that the route be changed: first, because the dignity of the Grand-Army domanded that it should at least precede the militia, and second, that the change was necessary in order that the reception of Major Warner might be carried out according to the plans already arranged. Colonel Cruger denied the request. Then another meeting was called for last Sanreday night, and it was held in Brooklyn. A resolution was adopted that it should rest with each post whether representatives should be appointed to take part in the parade, which meant, practically, that none should take part unless the order of march should be changed.

In the meantime, the Executive Committee of the Memorial Committee of New-York City met on Wednesday at the 66th Regiment Armory and appointed a committee to wait on Colonel Cruger. This committee was composed of Judge Van Hoesen, Colonel Cruger. This committee was composed of Judge Van Hoesen, Colonel Cruger and they disting the parade from 11 a. m. to 10 a. m., which would give the Grand Army of the State or city. At the request of the second committee, Colonel Cruger and they officially accepted the arrangement on behalf of the Grand Army of the city.

The other committee, learning of this action, eleans still more dissatisfied and called another meeting for yesierday afternoon at 5 o'clock. It was well attended. A resolution was adopted, changing the reception to Major Warner from 8 p. m., April 30, to 2 p. m., May I. Much feeling was manifested. and several speakers declared that the Grand Army had been baddy used by the Centennial Committee.

THE CALL ISSUED FOR THE REPUBLICAN PRI MARIES ON FRIDAY.

a large attendance at the meeting of the Republican County Committee last night. The principal business was the report of the Committee on Appeals on the contests of the various districts and the issuance of the call for the primaries on Friday, which is published eisewhere in this paper. Colonel Cruger presided. Secretary Grasse, of the Committee on Ap-peals, submitted the findings of that body, which were sustained by the Committee in every instance.

In the 1st District the committee could find no evidence of improper enrolment against John Grimes. The refusal of the Enrolling Board to take the name of Charles H. Trainer was sustained. The names of five other man refused by the Board were put on the The action of the Enrolling Board in the but the names of the five men that the Board had re fused were admitted. The charges against the Euroli-ing Board of the IVth District also falled to impress the committee. It sustained the appointment of George Dixon in place of Joseph Murphy, about which so much has been said. Of the 264 challenges considered number of the people had not responded to make any defence. In 154 cases the challenges had been sustained. Fifty-three names had been put on the rolls by the enrolling officers and fifty more by the com

It was decided in the case of the XIVth District, of which ex-Coroner Nugent is leader, that the enrolling officers had acted fairly; at least no individual cases to the contrary were presented to the comm Four names were added to the lists in the XVIth District, where the contest was practically settled sum time ago. In closing their report the Committee or Appeals suggested that the new County Committee take some action toward improving the present system of enrolment, which was found to be singularly deficient, affording great opportunities for wrong-doing on the part of earolling officers and also permitting the registration of improper persons. On motion of Charles G. Cronin, the chairman was directed to nam a committee of twenty-five to confer with the Busines Mon's Association and other organizations in reference to the proposed headquarters of the party in this city. The regular hours for holding the primaries are from 3 until 9 p. m., but the leaders of the Vth, XIIIta, where the old contest between the Gibbs and the Sprague-Cowle factions has broken our again, XIVth, XVIth and XXIIId districts, asked permission to begin at 9 o'clock in the morning. SALMON IN THE UPPER HUDSON:

From The Troy Times.

All persons interested in the stocking of the Hudson River in this vicinity with salmon are looking forward with a great deal of interest as to what results they will meet with in taking the fish with hook and line-shis summer. At the rate in which these fish have developed in the Hudson those re-urning this season for the third time should weigh about forty-five pounds. Imagine some of our fishermen in the upper Hudson having hocked one of these fish where the river is free for a run of 150 yards of line! Just think how busy it will keep the fisherman! You have to let the salmon go on his first drive without any effort to stop him, and then reel up as fast as you can to be ready for the next round. Assume the fisherman to have hocked the salmon at Mechanic-ville below the dam; he may have to go down the river two miles before he can land him, and if it is a lusty fish he will be obliged to spend about two hours in tiring him out before he can use the gaif.
